DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-6, and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being unpatentable by Johnson et al (US 6,517,107).

Regarding claim 1, Johnson discloses a method for controlling a system in a vehicle using a transmitting /receiving comprising: a sensor element (Ultrasonic sensor driver circuit (18) having a sensors (6,7, 9, 11-14) for detecting at least infrared radiation; and a filter element (20) adapted such that substantially only infrared radiation is detectable by the sensor element ((Ultrasonic sensor driver circuit (18) having a sensors (6,7, 9, 11-14). See figures 21-25, col.32, lines 9-67 to col.38, lines1-43.

Regarding claim 2, Johnson discloses a device is for automatically switching lighting equipment for a motor vehicle. See col.21, lines 2-65.

Regarding claim 3, Johnson discloses wherein the sensor element (6,7, 9, 11-14) emits a signal, and further comprising a control device (23) including an element for switching the lighting equipment as a function of the signal. See figures 21-22.

Regarding claim 4, Johnson discloses wherein the filter element (20) is attachable to a glass pane of the motor vehicle. See col.26, lines 25-65 to col.27, lines 1-26.

Regarding claim 5, Johnson discloses a rain sensor including a light-conducting element, the light-conducting element being substantially only transparent with respect to infrared radiation and being used as a filter element. See col.26, lines 25-65 to col.27, lines 1-26.

Regarding claim 6, Johnson discloses a layer that is substantially only transparent with respect to infrared radiation, the layer (layer 1 or layer 2) being situated on at least a part of a surface of the light-conducting element. See col.36, lines 3-55.

Regarding claim 9, Johnson discloses wherein the filter element is integrated into the sensor element. See figures 21-25.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 7-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Johnson et al (US 6,517,107) in view of Vogt et al (US 2003/0169454).

Regarding claims 7-8, Johnson discloses the claimed invention except for the layer is elastic or adhesive. Vogt discloses the layer is elastic or adhesive. See col.1, lines [0001] to lines [0003].

It would have been an obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to employ the layer is elastic or adhesive such as that suggested by Vogt in the sensor system of Johnson for transparent to infrared radiation and filter.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Williams (US 3, 870, 884) and Neilson et al (US 2002/0098592) are cited to show an infrared detector device.
